Rights & Duties as to Client Confidentiality

The Immigration Project supports the legitimate expectation of its client families to privacy. This right to privacy includes a limitation on the use of information and other communications observed by volunteers.

All records, actions and other communications made by clients are confidential. Their use is governed by the laws of the State of Illinois and the policies of The Immigration Project.

Under Illinois law, you may not disclose these confidences to anyone not authorized by the client to receive them. Breach of this duty can result in civil and criminal penalties including up to $1,000.00 fine, one year in prison, or both.

Do not:

1. Reveal to anyone the name or identity of a client.
2. Repeat any statements, descriptions, or actions made by the clients.
3. Reveal to anyone any portion of a record created by any person based on communications or actions by the client (for example, applications, fee cards, case counts, or reports).
4. Use passwords or access information outside your time at The Immigration Project.

Changing the client’s name or other identity data is not enough to avoid these duties. You can discuss the case only with staff members of Immigration Project.

I have read this statement. I understand my rights and duties set forth above. I agree to perform these duties.
